December 2025

Letter from the President

Hello My Rockhound Friends

It's December! What a great year TGRC has had. I love how our members work very hard together to make every club event a success. We had two open houses this year. Each one generated positive feedback about TGRC. Over 50% of our members volunteered their help with our annual September show. Most organizations are fortunate to get 20% of their members to participate in any sponsored activities. We have talented moderators ready to share their knowledge to teach you their craft. We are fortunate to have specialty classes guiding us on "Make and Take" projects. We appreciate those members that have volunteered their time to teach these classes.

Next year will be even better. There are more specialty "Make and Take" classes planned. We are starting a new wire wrapping group. We even have some field trips being planned. Don't miss out on anything. Be sure to renew your membership for 2026. You can renew online or renew with any moderator.

Congratulations to the incoming officers that were elected to serve in 2026. They will be sworn in at the December meeting. A huge THANK YOU to every member that has supported me throughout my presidential term. I have enjoyed guiding the club and working with everyone. We truly are a great club with wonderful members. I know you will support Jerri, the incoming president. She has plans and ideas to grow the club. Let's get behind her to help her achieve these new goals.

See you at the December meeting. Come early for the Holiday Potluck!

Merry Christmas,

Diane F. Bieber
President

Meet The Moderators

“Steve Stalker”

This is called the “Toledo Gem and Rockhound Club.” So, where does stained glass fit in? Steve Stalker, who serves as TGRC Treasurer and is a multi-skills moderator, believes stained glass is a fun spin-off that appeals to the creativity common in so many TGRC members. The skills of artistic design, preparation and the satisfaction of creation are shared in many Club activities. Why not stained glass?

Steve relishes teaching and his background in special education helps him instruct clearly and succinctly. “My wife and I took a class in stained glass about 30 years ago,” Steve recalled. “But that class left a lot to be desired. They assumed you knew things they didn’t show or explain.” Steve’s special education training impressed upon him that you should never assume a student already knows anything.” That may make my classes start out a little boring, but it also keeps students from getting lost.”

The in-person nature of Steve’s classes mean questions can be answered immediately and techniques can be refined or corrected right away. Steve’s stained-glass classes start simple, with hands-on guidance on how to cut glass. “I have a supply of free window glass, which is great for practice to learn how to cut glass.” Once students are comfortable cutting practice glass, they can move to more expensive stained glass, all under Steve’s watchful, experienced eye. After the glass pieces are cut, the next phase begins. Then, channels and frames are fabricated, soldered and the stained-glass piece is assembled and finished. As with all TGRC workshops, safety is a key concern. Steve starts with something as simple as using a paint brush, not your hand, to sweep glass debris off the table. Steve’s emphasis on safety makes him proud that very few of his glass artists have ever shed blood!

The inveterate teacher, Steve observes that skill and artistic abilities of students in each workshop. He observes that, “some just want to follow the instructions for a particular glass pattern, and others will want to experiment with different techniques.” Individual personalities mean different comfort levels, but the primary purpose is to just have fun. The payoff for Steve is seeing that “Ah-ha!” moment when someone in the workshop clearly grasps a new technique. He loves seeing an emerging look of understanding or success on people’s faces.

Steve tries to conduct about 4 stained-glass classes a year but would welcome scheduling more if the interest is there. “There’s a learning curve with any new skill,” says Steve. “My job is to shorten that learning curve.” He also envisions bigger things:

“My goal for glass crafters is to have a bi-monthly work sessions with members working on a panel (30-100 pieces),” an accomplishment that starts with well-taught, fundamental skills.

Steve also hosts glass cabochon and fused glass workshops in addition to gem crafting sessions. Interested TGRC Members can check the monthly calendar in the Rocky Reader for class schedules or reach Steve at sstalker@bex.net to request organizing any additional class.

-Story by Jim Nowak

The November meeting proved to be a pivotal and successful gathering, highlighted by the completion of our annual officer elections. We extend huge congratulations to the incoming 2026 officers who will guide our club through the years ahead: Jerri Heer (President), Jim Nowak (Vice President), Deb Oswald (Secretary), Steve Stalker (Treasurer), Bill Oswald (Sergeant-at-Arms), and Dana Jacob (Board Member).

We are eager to support this dedicated team as they take the helm.

The atmosphere was equally vibrant during our annual auction. Thank you to everyone who participated; the spirited, back-and-forth bidding made the evening fun and ensured we met our fundraising goals! A special note of gratitude goes to Ruby Reynolds for her generous donations; these wonderful items will undoubtedly be cherished additions to the collections of all who took something home.

Looking ahead, be sure to utilize the resources available on our website. Please check the calendar for up-to-date dates and times for upcoming Classes and open sessions. And finally, mark your calendars for our annual holiday celebration: The Club Christmas Potluck will be held on December 17th at 6:00 PM.

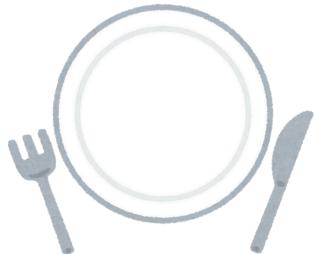

Please bring a dish to share and plenty of Holiday Cheer as we celebrate the year together.

Have a Happy and Safe Holiday Season! We look forward to seeing you next year.

-Tricia (TJ) Jackson Vice President

Dec 17th Rockhound Holiday Party

Come join your Rockhound friends at the annual Holiday Party, Wed. Dec 17 at 6 pm. There will be a potluck dinner so please bring a dish to share and serving utensils. To keep the food varied, please consider using your last name to bring:

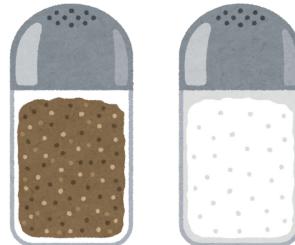

A to F- a main dish or casserole

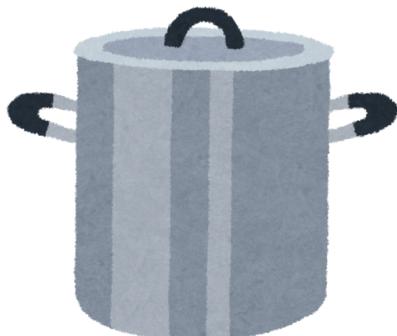

G to L- a side dish or tray

M to P- Drinks

Q to Z- a dessert, sweets

We always have fun and time to visit at the party. You might consider bringing a cool rock from your collection for others to admire/ learn about.

See you Dec 17!
